ENGINEER SCOFFS AT FALSE RUMOR

Asserts Flood Not Caused By Dams

Col. R. G. Powell, United States division engineer at Cincinnati, branded as totally without foundation the contentions that the navigation dams on the Ohio River affected the crest to which the January flood climbed.

Pointing out that the dams are of the movable type provided with wickets that lie flat on the river bed during a flood, Colonel Powell said that all the dams were entirely down by December 23, over a month before the crest of the flood was reached.

It was pointed out that the lower Mississippi River suffered the highest stage of water on record, and no navigation dams are used in that area.

HOLC BORROWERS CUTTING ARREARS

Improved Economic Conditions Are Reflected

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation reported improved economic conditions were being reflected in collections on its loans.

Charles A. Jones, general manager, at Washington said that as a result of this general economic improvement it appeared that many borrowers who at one time seemed hopelessly in arrears would be able to clear up their past-due obligations and meet their monthly installments punctually.

He summarized the situation of the 1,900,000 individuals to whom the H.O.L.C. loaned $3,000,000 as follows:

More than 452,000 currently paying their bills and in good standing as to both principal and interest; more than 95,000 less than three months in arrears; of the remainder, more than 200,000 meeting their monthly bills and making payments on their arrearages.

CHURCH ESCAPES IN FREAK STUNT

Pews And Pulpit Are Saved As Floor Rides Crest

One of the freak stunts of the flood in Jeffersonville and an item for Ripley's "Believe It or Not" column, happened at the First Presbyterian Church, it was learned.

Water to the depth of approximately fifteen feet was in the edifice during the crest period, causing the floor joists to become loosened from the side-walls.

As the waters continued on their climb the church floor with the pews and pulpit, raised, and, floating on the top, were saved from damage.

It was stated that the carpet on the pulpit floor was not even wet.

It will be necessary to anchor the floor to the walls of the building, which were not hurt during the disaster, before services can be resumed, it was stated.

PLANS PROTECTION OF STATE ROADS

Posting Of Highways Against Heavy Traffic Begun

Vehicles with a gross weight of more than three tons will be barred from two thousand miles of state highways during alternate freezes and thaws this Spring, James D. Adams, chairman of the State Highway Commission, has announced.

Posting of roads against heavy traffic at times when the surfaces might be damaged is conducted by maintenance superintendent in the thirty-six state highway sub-districts.

"Sections of more than one hundred and fifty State highways—chiefly those with low-type surfaces and considered a part of the secondary system—are subject to closing at times when they might be damaged by heavy vehicles. Disregard of the warning placed at either end of a posted section subjects the violator to arrest and damages equal to the damage caused, it was stated.

The posting of highways has been in progress for the past few weeks and will continue as long as weather conditions require.
